Mr. Howland Wood,
Broadway at 156th St.,
New York City.

Dear Sir —

I enclose a postal money order for ten dollars for which please send me the aureus of the Emperor Tiberius referred to in your letter of January 10th.

Would appreciate it if you can give me the exact lettering of the inscriptions on the coin. I suppose that the worn condition of it will make it difficult to read the inscriptions and at present I haven't access to any reference books.

I will want to buy a few pieces of Roman silver later. Will you kindly let me know what you have?

Sincerely,
D. R. Cummins.

Dear Sir:

Your favor with postal order received, and I am herewith sending you the aureus of the Emperor Tiberius. Although somewhat worn, I think it will prove satisfactory to you for the purpose for which you want it. I have put on the envelope the exact lettering of the inscription.

Just at the present moment, we have no Roman coins to sell, but when you are ready if you will let me know a little bit more fully what you might want we may be able to get them for you.

Very truly yours,

Curator
